

Manx language hits the Big Apple

An estimated 9 million people read about the Manx language in the The New York Times recently.

It is amazing to have such coverage for the Isle of Man's language, and for some of the wonderful organisations and individuals behind the language's continued flourishing today.

Read about it here