

Orkney's cruise season starts early with arrival of Magellan

The first cruise liner to arrive in the 2016 season will berth at Hatston Pier on Thursday 10 March at 08:00. The Magellan, owned by CMV cruises has a maximum passenger capacity of 1800 passengers is a regular caller to Kirkwall and is currently on an itinerary of the north Atlantic region.

This season, Orkney has 113 port calls booked from a range of cruise shipping with the largest liner being the Caribbean Princess with a capacity of 3599 passengers to the smallest liner, Hebridean Princess, with 50 passengers.

Stromness will receive 16 port calls this season, and the number of ships arriving in Kirkwall is fairly evenly split between berthing at Hatston Pier, and those either tendering into Kirkwall Pier or berthing alongside.

Meet and Greet Services for all of the port calls will be conducted by Sam and Mike Berston of M&S Hospitality Services Ltd., and J&V Coaches operated by Vega and Jimmy Poke will be providing the shuttle bus service between Hatston Pier and the Kirkwall Travel centre.

Orkney remains the most popular cruise ship destination in the United Kingdom, and as the season gets underway, there are already 113 port calls pre-booked for the 2017 season. The last call of the 2016 season will be Black Watch on the 30 December en route to Edinburgh for the Hogmanay celebrations.

On the 10 August, Orkney will receive its 1500th port call and 750,000 passenger since records began in 1992, with the arrival of Black Watch at Hatston. A day of celebrations are being planned to celebrate this maritime tourism milestone.
